Immediately after the jury had returned the indictments a conference followed between his attorneys and Commonwealth Attorney Samuel G.

He said Rixey, who is now in Norfolk, was suffering from chronic heart trouble and nervous shock, and that his counsel was assured by his physician that to bring him into court at this time would retard his recovery. In conclusion, he added that it had been agreed to bring him here February 29 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, unless it would be a serious menace to his life to do so, and that on that day they would give proper ball bond. Judge Barley said he had not entered an order for Rixey's arrest and would leave the matter of his production in court in the hands of his attorneys.

His counsel said that they expected they would be ready for the arraign-ment on that day and asked before leaving court for copies of the in-dictments returned against the ac-
